ORANGE WINE

Orange wine is having a Renaissance - winemakers around the world are revisiting this ancient technique of fermenting white wine like a red - with skins and all. Because of the extended maceration with their skins, "orange" wines are often characterized by higher tannin than is usually common for a white wine, along with flavors of dried fruits and nuts. Try pairing with foods not normally associated with white wines, like suckling pig, roast chicken and winter squash.

131	Paolo Bea	Santa Chiara {Grechetto/Malvasia}	Umbria Bianco IGT	2012	141

IDENTITY CRISIS

As far as we're aware, this is the only bottling made of aleatico vinified as a "white" wine - normally made into a sweet red, this versatile white has a slight spice and an aroma of white cherries.

LIGHT, FLORAL & EARTHY

Before you flip the page - give these wines a shot. These wines are some of my favorite on the entire list... not because they're the most bold, brash, or in-your-face. Precisely the opposite, in fact. These wines whisper rather than shout. They're the string section of the orchestra, not the brass. They might take a moment to warm up to you, but they're oh-so-worth it.
